

Education Committee Member Form

"The ICCS Education committee is dedicated to the creation of a diverse portfolio of educational resources for those involved in clinical cytometry. The Education committee currently includes the following subcommittees: Newsletter, Video, e-Learning and Question & Answer. The Education committee works closely with the Quality and Standards and Advocacy committees, the director of the ICCS annual course, and the Clinical Cytometry Education Network (CCEN) steering committee."

Expectations: Members of the Education committee participate in creating content, such as videos and e-learning activities, answering questions submitted through the ICCS website, soliciting articles for the quarterly e-newsletter, and identifying authors for web-presentations and webinars. Members are expected to participate in monthly conference calls, additional subcommittee conference calls and other interim work.
